

Barbecues on Bruntsfield Short Hole Golf Courseshaving read the barbecue item in Saturday's Edinburgh Evening News, below are some scenes on the golf courses on Sunday 7 July 2013. I walked the golf course for two hours in the early evening and whilst, in that time others came to set up yet more barbecues, I did not see any officials speaking to anyone at all. There was a neighbour from Warrender Park Terrace on the Links and she was engaging barbecuers in conversations. Without any signage saying..... 'Barbecues are prohibited on both Golf Courses'(as already agreed by the Council) and no Enforcement Officers seen patrolling to direct the many barbecuers to the new 'official sites', how does the Council envisage enforcing their New Management Rules?

I know it is early days for the council's new initiative, but Officers, must be seen to be around when there are as many barbecues on the Links as there were yesterday evening.
